City Hall, Bay Street at Bull Street, Savannah, GA 31401, (912) 651-6441

Organizational History:

The office of the Clerk of Council was created by the first City Council in 1790. The first Clerk elected by that Council, John Gibbons, served as both Clerk and Treasurer for the new municipal government (Gamble, pp. 48-49).

Ordinances of 1839, 1857, 1858, 1860, and 1917 outlined the responsibilities of the Clerk through the years as follows: to receive applications and petitions of citizens and present them to the Council; to attend and record the proceedings of Council meetings; to keep valuable City documents in fire-proof safes; to swear in City officials and police officers; to advertise City elections; to attend Police Court, and record and submit the proceedings to Council; to make an annual report on the condition of the City's records; to make out, attest, and record the titles to purchases of City lots; to maintain dry culture contracts; to maintain City contracts and cemetery deed books; to issue liquor licenses; to attest to City bonds; to sell badges (for licensing and identification) to vendors, for negroes to work, and to free persons of color; to keep a register of free persons of color; to receive port reports; to issue passports; to keep a bound, indexed book of real property owned by the City; to keep a record of purchases and conveyances of the City and of leases, encumbrances, or liens; and to license anyone in possession of ammunition (Code of Savannah 1858, p.107, 109; Code of Savannah 1871, pp. 139-142; Code of Savannah 1918, p. 114).

As the official record keeper, the Clerk of Council continues to be responsible for maintaining all official codes, ordinances, records and documents, and serving as supervisor of City elections (2008 Service Program and Budget, p. 46).

Sub-series description:

Sub-series 5600CL-005.1-A Council Minutes Volumes (1791-2001) includes ninety-six volumes of the original minutes recording the meetings of City Council. The council minutes are a detailed description of business transacted and decisions made by Council. The minutes are recorded from the original working papers and the actual Council meetings. The minutes are bound in volumes within one month of each Council meeting at which they were taken.

Within each volume, each set of minutes includes: date of meeting; Council members present; committee reports; accounts; petitions and applications; ordinances; resolutions; and miscellaneous business. The records in the volumes from 1791 to 1900 adhered to this general format, with some variations in the order in which the information was presented. In 1900, accounts were incorporated into committee reports. During this same period, council minutes were handwritten. Overlapping minutes for 1791 to 1796 and 1794 to 1796 were copied in two separate volumes. From the 1790's through 1877, an index was located in the front of each volume of the council minutes. Beginning in 1877, separate index volumes were compiled as a cross-reference to the volumes of minutes.

Note:

The minute books and index volumes for the council minutes from 1790-1900 were microfilmed onto 24 rolls in 1991. The microfilm is described in Sub-series 5600CL-005 (mf) Minute Books, and is available for research use through the Bull Street Library (2002 Bull Street, Savannah, GA 31401, (912) 652-3697).

Sub-series description:

Sub-series 5600CL-340-A Ordinances and Index to Ordinances Volumes (1787-1935) includes thirty-five volumes containing the full text of ordinances passed by City Council. The ordinances were compiled to correspond with the volumes of council minutes. The volumes are divided by sections based on ordinance subjects, including: bread; fire; streets; taverns; cemeteries; auctioneers; canal basins; etc. Due to this, some volumes overlap chronologically. Index volumes are alphabetically cross-referenced. After January 31, 1962, ordinance volumes were discontinued and ordinances quoted in full in the council minutes.
