Record Series #: 5600RC

Name: City of Savannah, Georgia Records – Recorder’s Court

Dates: 1830-1971

Extent/Size: 373 volumes (183.5 cubic feet)

Organizational History:

In 1819, the state legislature abolished the Mayor’s Court in favor of the Court of Common Pleas and Oyer and Terminer. However, the Mayor continued to hear minor cases, and in 1838, the Police Court was created. The Mayor presided over the Police Court, hearing complaints against rioters, disorderly persons, and violators of City ordinances. The Mayor was also given the power to impose fines on violators (Gamble, p. 455). In 1849, the Georgia legislature made the Savannah Police Court a court of record, giving it jurisdiction over all offenses against state laws that related to Savannah with the power to fine and imprison offenders. The Clerk of Council, City Marshal, and constables were made officers of the Police Court at this time (Georgia Laws 1849-1850, p. 83).

In December 1871, the Georgia Assembly authorized the appointment of a recorder to preside over the Police Court, and one was chosen in January of 1872. The office of Recorder was discontinued in 1875, as a cost-cutting measure, but was re-established in December 1892 (Gamble, p. 466). The powers of the Recorder included serving subpoenas, imposing fines, committing offenders to jail, and the right to suspend or modify penalties. The Recorder’s jurisdiction also extended to violations of County ordinances (Code of Savannah 1958, p. 59-65).

On January 1, 1973, the Recorder’s Court of Chatham County was abolished by an act of the Georgia legislature and succeeded by the Recorder’s Court of the City of Savannah, which assumed the jurisdiction and powers of the abolished court. However, this same act changed the name of the Recorder’s Court of the City of Savannah to the Recorder’s Court of Chatham County and provided for an elected recorder and the appointment of associate judges (Georgia Laws 1972, p. 1493-1496).
