Westley Wallace Law (W. W. Law)

Administrative History:

In February of 1917, National Association for the Advancement of Colored People's (NAACP) Field Secretary, James Weldon Johnson (1871-1938), met with a group of prominent Savannah African Americans to establish a Savannah branch. Joseph C. Lindsay was elected as the first president and by December of 1918 the branch had 79 members. One of the first activities of the Savannah branch was to work with Savannah Mayor Wallace Pierpont as they protested the proposed move of the "red light district" to the predominantly African American neighborhood west of West Broad Street. Throughout the 1920s and early 1930s the Savannah branch fluctuated in membership and their main activities included funding lawyers for wrongly convicted African Americans and hosting national NAACP leaders to encourage membership. However, by 1939 the branch was considered inactive and the charter was revoked.

The revival of the NAACP Savannah branch was made possible through the leadership of Reverend Ralph Mark Gilbert (1899-1956). Recently installed as Reverend at First African Baptist Church, Gilbert called a meeting in March 1942 to reestablish the branch. Gilbert was elected President and served the Savannah branch in this capacity from 1942 to 1950. Under Gilbert, the branch's role in the Civil Rights Movement grew through the use of new confrontational protest techniques and the establishment of a youth council. The Savannah Youth Council was formed in January 1943, and by March of that year had 614 members with Norman L. Gadsden serving as the first president. Reverend Gilbert was also instrumental in the establishment of the Georgia State Conference of NAACP branches. In January 1943, representatives from Georgia NAACP branches met in Savannah to convene the first meeting of the conference and elected Gilbert as the first state President; he served until 1950. Gilbert believed the Georgia State Conference was integral to establishing more branches throughout the state, especially in rural towns and colleges.

In 1950, the NAACP Savannah branch elected Westley Wallace "W. W." Law (1923-2002) President, who at 27 years old was, the youngest branch president in the country. Law had previously served as Savannah Youth Council President and was a mentee of Gilbert's. Law also served on the NAACP Board of Directors from 1950 to 1980 and was the Georgia State Conference President, from 1955 to 1967. For his leadership in the NAACP, Law faced several instances of discrimination, specifically in 1961 when he was fired from his position with the United States Post Office. Law was only reinstated after national leaders and lawyers advocated on his behalf.

W. W. Law led several protests, boycotts, mass meetings, sit-ins, pickets, and marches, leading to the successful integration of several Savannah institutions. The years 1960 and 1961 were the height of these protests, including a sixteen-month boycott of downtown Savannah businesses that refused to service or hire African Americans. Boycotts and protests made such a significant revenue impact, many store owners began to implement integration plans by July 1961. Other Savannah facilities integrated as a result of NAACP protests include public libraries, recreational facilities, movie theaters, the municipal golf course and auditorium, Tybee Beach, and public transportation. A lawsuit fought by NAACP lawyers in 1963, Ralph Stell v. Savannah-Chatham County Board of Public Education, led to the integration of public schools in Savannah. The NAACP recruited students to attend all-white schools, and in the fall of 1963, nineteen African American students integrated Savannah High and Groves High schools. All of this was achieved before the passage of the Federal Civil Rights Act of 1964 by Congress.

The NAACP Savannah branch continued to fight for equal rights throughout the 1970s and 1980s by taking on employee discrimination cases, protesting police violence against African Americans, and holding voter registration drives to elect African American leaders. NAACP members faced discrimination and violence for their efforts to end racial biases. One example of such violence was the death of City of Savannah Alderman Robbie Robinson, a NAACP lawyer murdered by a mail bomb sent by Walter Moody in December 1989.

Law resigned as NAACP Savannah branch President in 1976 and became President Emeritus of the Savannah branch for his tireless and sacrificial efforts to the Civil Rights Movement. Curtis Cooper succeeded him as Savannah branch President until his death in 2000. The NAACP Savannah branch is still active, hosting voter registration drives, political debates, and other activities, with offices located on Martin Luther King, Jr. Boulevard.

Scope & Content:

The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP) Savannah branch records (1911-2013, no date, bulk 1931-2001) contains the operational, membership, and administrative records of the Savannah, Georgia branch of the NAACP. The records were created during W. W. Law's tenure as President of the Savannah Youth Council, NAACP Savannah branch, and Georgia State Conference, as well as when he was a board member of the National Board of Directors. The records reflect membership, activities, finances, administration, reporting, publications, subject files, and correspondence. The records also include reproductions from the Library of Congress' collection of the national office's records related to the Savannah branch and other Georgia branches. The significance of this collection is its detailed insight into the national and local Civil Rights Movement, as well as how the local branch interacted within the larger NAACP structure, reflected in the records documenting activities such as voter registration drives, discrimination complaints, court cases, mass meetings, membership campaigns, protest demonstrations, lectures, and participation in NAACP conventions. Items of interest include correspondence from national Civil Rights leaders, including Rosa Parks, Langston Hughes, Roy Wilkins, Clarence Mitchell, and Ruby Hurley, in which they discuss national, local and state events, court cases, and NAACP memberships.

Record Series 1121-102, National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP) Savannah branch records

Sub-series #: 1121-102.3
Name: National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP)
Savannah branch records – National, Regional, State, and other branches activity records
Dates: 1912, 1945-2001, no date
Extent/Size: 9 records cartons, 2 1/4 oversized boxes (10.6 cubic feet)

Scope and Content:

Sub-series 1121-102.3 National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP) Savannah branch records – National, Regional, State, and other branches activity records (1912, 1945-2001, no date) includes records that reflect the activities of the national, regional, and state offices, as well as other NAACP branches. The activity records reflect the participation of members in annual conventions, fundraising dinners, symposiums, banquets, marches, resolutions voted on by the membership at conventions, and receptions honoring national leaders. The national annual convention records are detailed and start from the 38th Annual Convention in 1947 to the 89th Annual Convention in 1998. Other annual conventions include the Georgia State Conference, national youth conventions, leadership conferences, and regional conventions. The convention records include delegate kits, reports, resolutions, speeches, event programs, and press releases. A highlight of this sub-series is the variety of material found within the delegate and convention packets that were handed out to branch delegates and convention attendees. The material within these packets include promotional items for sponsoring businesses, maps and brochures on the city the convention was held in, notepads for delegates, and identification badges. Unique conferences that delegates attended include the Midcentury White House Conference on Children and Youth in Washington, D. C., December 3-7, 1950, and the National Youth Legislative conferences held at Howard University, Washington, D.C. in 1948 and 1954.

System of Arrangement and Ordering:

Sub-series 1121-102.3 National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP) Savannah branch records – National, Regional, State, and other branches activity records is arranged alphabetically by activity. Conventions have been separated and arranged chronologically by national conventions, then alphabetically by state, regional, leadership, and co-sponsored conventions.

Record Series 1121-102, National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP) Savannah branch records

Sub-series #: 1121-102.4
Name: National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP)
Savannah branch records – Membership and related organizations records
Dates: 1921, 1931-2000, no date
Extent/Size: 6 records cartons, 1/4 oversized box (6.8 cubic feet)

Scope and Content:

Sub-series 1121-102.4 National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP) Savannah branch records – Membership and related organizations records (1921, 1931-2000, no date) includes the records of the Savannah branch, Southeastern Region, Georgia State Conference, National Board, and related local organizations membership records. The records include individual membership details, meeting minutes, national and local committee records, membership awards, officer nominations and election records, constitutions and by-laws, membership campaigns, membership contacts, and National Board of Directors meeting minutes, reports, and meeting notices. Information can be found on national, local, and regional leaders. Also included in this sub-series are related local organization records for groups such as Chatham County Crusade for Voters, Political Advisory Council, and the State-Wide All Citizens Registration Committee. These organizations had a close relationship with the NAACP Savannah branch and often collaborated on activities to reach a wider audience. Items of note include the records from specific Savannah branch committees including the Labor and Industry Committee, Gingerbread Village Committee, Housing Committee, Transportation Committee, Textbook Committee, and Day Care Committee. Also of note are the national Youth Work Committee records that W. W. Law was a member of, including meeting minutes and information packets.

System of Arrangement and Ordering:

Sub-series 1121-102.4 National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP) Savannah branch records – Membership and related organizations records are arranged into two groups:

NAACP Membership Records
Related Organizations Records

The NAACP membership records are arranged alphabetically and were created by the national office (unless a different creator is identified). Related organizations records are separated and arranged alphabetically by organization.

Sub-series #: 1121-102.5
Name: National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP)
Savannah branch records – Publications
Dates: 1918, 1933-2002, 2012-2013, no date
Extent/Size: 21 1/4 records cartons, 1 3/4 oversized boxes, 2 oversized folders, 1 framed item,
30 volumes (21.0 cubic feet; 2.0 linear feet)

Scope and Content:

Sub-Series 1121-102.5 National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP) Savannah branch records – Publications (1918, 1933-2002, 2012-2013, no date) contains a variety of print publications produced for and from the NAACP national office, state, regional, and local branches and leaders to promote and operate the organization. The publication types include brochures, periodicals, pamphlets, booklets, manuals, program guides, books, news articles, and essays. Authors include national leaders such as Benjamin Hooks and Clarence Mitchell, as well as local leaders such as W. W. Law and Ralph Mark Gilbert. Included in this sub-series is Crisis, NAACP's nationally produced magazine, first issued in 1910 by W. E. B. DuBois. Several articles of the Crisis reference the efforts of the Savannah branch and Youth Council as well as other branch activities throughout the nation. Highlights of this sub-series are the local branch publications, including a newsletter by the Savannah Youth Council, "Watchdog," from 1948-1949 and a booklet, "We shall Not be Moved: Collection of 'Freedom Now' Songs as Sung in the NAACP Savannah branch and Youth Council," 1969.

System of Arrangement and Ordering:

Sub-Series 1121-102.5 National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP) Savannah branch records – Publications is arranged alphabetically and the records were created by the national office (unless a different creator is identified). The Crisis has been arranged at the end of the inventory by issue date.

Name: National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP) Savannah branch records – Library of Congress, National Association for the Advancement of Colored People Records (reproductions)
Dates: 1915-1967, no date
Extent/Size: 3/4 records carton (0.8 cubic feet)

Scope and Content:

Sub-series 1121-102.8 National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP) Savannah branch records – Library of Congress, National Association for the Advancement of Colored People Records, reproductions (1915-1967, no date) consists of documents found in the national office NAACP records held at the Library of Congress. The reproductions in this sub-series all relate to Savannah and Georgia NAACP branch activities. They include correspondence, financial records, and membership reports spanning the creation and revival of the NAACP Savannah branch, creation of the Youth Council, the establishment of the Savannah State University branch, and W. W. Law’s and Ralph Mark Gilbert’s presidencies. Some highlights of this sub-series are correspondence related to the establishment of the Savannah branch in 1917, and documents related to a fine imposed on the Savannah branch and NAACP for picketing violations issued by the Superior Court of Chatham County in the case National Association for the Advancement of Colored People v. Haldred Overstreet, verdict issued in 1963. The case was appealed and argued by NAACP lawyers before the United States Supreme Court in 1966.
